Raise the Bar Psychology is an established private practice in Melbourne. We provide neurodevelopmental assessments for children, adolescents and adults, alongside counselling, careers counselling, parent support, and learning interventions. Our team works across our Heatherton, Moonee Ponds, Clyde North, and Gippsland clinics.

A little about the role:

Due to increased demand, we are looking for a psychologist to support clients presenting with a range of concerns, including anxiety and stress, depression and mood disorders, challenging behaviours, self-esteem and confidence issues, and friendship and relationship issues. In addition, many of our clients seek support in understanding their (or their child's) neurodivergence and associated needs, navigating parenting challenges and in advocating for their child at school. The role entails seeing clients in the clinic 1 to 2 days each week, with the option to increase days over time. As a contractor, you will work autonomously and with a high degree of flexibility.

Who are we looking for?

We are looking for experienced psychologists who can provide a high level of care and expertise to clients, and to work professionally and collaboratively with our team. This role is most appropriate for senior psychologists (5 plus years of relevant clinical experience) who can work independently. As a contractor, internal supervision is not provided, however peer consultation and external supervision is encouraged.

What we offer:

- Flexible contractor position
- Fully furnished clinic room, with the opportunity to co-design the space
- Attractive contractor fee, and superannuation entitlements
- Full reception and admin support
- Significant flexibility and autonomy
- Association with a highly reputable and established group practice
